Antonio Barrera Banda

* 1974 • Iquitos • Peru

Amazonian natural healer and artist.

Born and resides in Iquitos, a city in the middle of the jungle, also known as the gate of Amazonia. At the age of 16, following a near-death experience, his healing capabilities fully materialized.

He works with energy and sound, in connection with and aided by healing plants – all in the spirit of the Amazonian tradition. He built and leads the Trocha Amazonica center, which is frequented by people from all around the world, who seek healing. With his work he aims to preserve the precious diversity of the Amazon jungle, as well as the traditions and ancestral wisdom, which are disappearing as quickly as the rain forest is. He travels around the world, giving lectures and showcasing his art. His paintings hold within them knowledge attained on the healing path, knowledge of local flora, visions, experiences, dreams and healing energy of Icaro songs.

The unique exhibition IQUITOS GREEN, for the first time in Amsterdam, is a retrospective of his two-decade-long artistic expression. It is composed of borrowed paintings from art collectors and new works which are available for sale. It allows insight into the cosmology of life of the Amazonian curanderos. Their knowledge, myths and legends – just as the Amazonian jungle – need to be protected and preserved as a cultural and natural heritage for coming generations.
